Explanatory notes:

- College textbooks are at least 3 author sheets in length and are peer-reviewed by experts in the field prior to publication; they provide a systematic, interpretive overview of knowledge in a given discipline or social practice.

- Scripts and teaching texts contain methodological materials, handbooks, etc., in at least 3 author sheets (1 AS = 20 standard pages, 1 standard page = 1800 characters).
- Citations and acknowledgements listed in the SCI (Scientific Citation Index) database are accepted; auto-citations are excluded, so that the sets of authors of the cited publication and the authors of the citing publication are disjunctive.
- Original monographs of at least 3 author sheets are considered as scientific monographs. Monographs are peer-reviewed before publication by at least two experts whose names appear in the publication (except for foreign publishers, which do not provide this information). The monograph must have an ISBN number.
